

In 1902, The McGraw Publishing Co. founded a monthly journal called ELECTROCHEMICAL INDUSTRY. This was the first magazine launched by the fledgling firm. Renamed ELECTRO-CHEMICAL AND METALLURGICAL INDUSTRY in 1905, the book a year later absorbed the magazine IRON & STEEL. In 1910, its title became METALLURGICAL AND CHEMICAL ENGINEERING. Seven years later, McGraw Publishing merged with the Hill Publishing Co., with the resulting McGraw-Hill Publishing Co. incorporating the magazine operations of both of its predecessors. A few months thereafter, METALLURGICAL AND CHEMICAL ENGINEERING had its name changed again, to CHEMICAL AND METALLURGICAL ENGINEERING. This appellation remained until 1946, when the current title, CHEMICAL ENGINEERING, was adopted. CHEMICAL ENGINEERING has thus had a continuous history of 94 years, and carries the distinction of being the first magazine to have been established by either of the forerunners of what is now The McGraw-Hill Companies.
